Jewish-Christian Relations reaching further: The Story of MFJ: Methodist Friends of Judaism with The Revd Bruce Thompson

The CCJ is rightly linked to the Revd James Parkes as the pioneering powerhouse behind its establishment. But CCJ's incredible growth during World War II and in the 1950s was due to a Methodist preacher committed to the safety and flourishing of British Jews. He was Bill Simpson. Today the Methodist Church has strong links to the Jewish community and CCJ through the MFJ. The Revd Bruce Thomson, former Chair of the Lincolnshire District of the Methodist Church shares with us this dynamic 21st Century chapter in Jewish – Christian Relations.
